School Committee Allows Action to Stand.

The town school committee at the meeting Wednesday evening elected Miss Alice Halligan of Shelbourne Falls, Mass., a teacher in the High school. Joseph Peck appeared before the committee in behalf of Samuel Bycol and asked the committee to reconsider its recent vote making the tuition charge for Bycel's children, who have been attending the Natchaug school. Bycel lives in a house near the town line, in the town of Mansfield, and the committee decided to allow its recent action to stand.

Power Line from Ashland Power Sta-tion to Borough-F. of A. Whist-Mrs. Buell to Give Temperance Ad-

The first poles have been drawn and the bargains for pole settings on private property have been closed for the line which will carry the heavy electric current from the Ashland Cotton comcurrent from the Ashland Cotton company's power station at Hopeville to their mills in the borough. The line will run from the plant in a straight line southwesterly to a point at the north corner of Shea Brothers' ice-house at Dorrville and will be south of the highway all this distance, crossing the property of G. A. Haskell, Archie McNicol, J. C. Hawkins and the old Samuel Barber farm. At Dorrville there are a half dozen poles on the highway, they south of the residence of Mrs. Octavia Dyer the line makes its first and only angle of any importance and goes straight to the mill. The current will be carried on a big half inch copper wire known technically as No. four "O." It will leave the power house at Hopeville at 400 horse power and after being carried over nearly three miles of wire will be delivered at the mill here at 350 horse power.
